Introduction

INTRODUCTION

This 5-day intensive program brings together researchers and practitioners from all DESINC partner institutions, relevant guest speakers from academia, urban practice and CSOs, as well as other engaged students and educators. Participants will join forces to explore the interface between the reception and inclusion of refugees and international migrants in local urban areas, and the teaching of architecture, urban design, and urban planning. The aim of this week is to collectively develop pedagogical approaches and principles to make questions of migration and asylum more integral to the teaching of urban design and planning. The IPHEL 2 builds on the results of the IPHEL 1, held in Sheffiled in December 2017.

The IPHEL 2 aims to support participants to:

1.   Revise and refine the shared vocabulary and set of concepts developed during IPHEL1 that address issues of migration in local urban areas, according to DESINC partner progress on project deliverables.

2.   In order to support the emergent needs of marginal groups, familiarise further with methods, tools and narratives that emphasise the agency of migrants and their contribution to city-making.

3.   Share and analyse experiences in the field of engaged urban practice, action-learning and knowledge co-production, in order to create meaningful learning programmes and environments addressing questions of migration and inclusion in the field of architecture, urban design, and urban planning.

4.   Examine a number of CSO-driven approaches for the welcoming of migrants in local urban areas, in order to distil lessons from these but also develop pedagogical tools that can match the learning and training needs of students, educators and CSOs in this field.

5.   Advance the development of pedagogical principles and approaches, by engaging in discussion in an interdisciplinary environment, and advance further in the systematic evaluation of current curriculum design and teaching/training practices which can lead to a shared approach across DESINC partners.

The IPHEL 2 was co-designed and developed by the Designing Inclusion teams of KU Leuven, Housing Europe, University of Sheffield and ASF-International.

GUEST SPEAKERS

Afra Dekie

Afra Dekie is a visual anthropologist (and doctoral researcher) interested in exploring the ways 'illegality' and abjectivity are being lived and experienced by people without papers in Brussels. Afra uses visual methodologies to explore these experiences, but also in an attempt to merge research, creative practice and community work to give 'visibility' to excluded communities, strive for social and political change through creative visual practice, and engage in public debate on immigration through ethnographic practice.

Jonas De Maeyer

Jonas studied architecture and urban planning. After having worked for several years in the field of architecture, landscape and urban design, he started focusing more on research and activism. At Parsons New School in New York he was involved in research on gentrification. He co-authored Over de Rand, a research project by OMGEVING concerning Ghent's urban fringe. In 2017 he co-founded Heim, a collective initiative focusing on arrival architecture and the integration of newcomers. Jonas is part of Endeavour, a platform for socio-spatial research and innovation based in Antwerp.

Koen De Wandeler

Koen De Wandeler is trained as an architect and an anthropologist at the KU Leuven and the School of Oriental and African Studies. He aquired extensive experience in Asia, working as an academic and a consultant with a wide range of academic institutions as well as with various NGOs, national and international agencies. At present, he is engaged in research and teaching at the Faculty of Architecture of the KU-Leuven. His current research interests are on urban transition processes and temporality. Given his extensive experience in development issues in the Global South, he remains actively involved in various action research and consultancy networks.

Minne Huysmans

Minne Huysmans holds a BSc in Socio-Eduactional Care Work, and a MSc in Adult Educational Sciences. He worked as a restorative justice mediator in Brussels, and conducted research at Odisee University College on 'the-right-to-the-city' in arrival districts of the Brussels Region. He is co-founder of (1) Growfunding, a civic crowdfunding platform in Brussels that focuses on bottom-up city making and (2) Volta, a music centre in Brussels for young and talented musicians in their transition from the pubscene to the professional clubcircuit. Minne is writing a PhD on future perspectives of young newcomers in an urban environment. His main research interests are: youth, citizenship, social support, and metropolitanism.

Maria Anita Palumbo

Maria Anita holds a PhD in Social Anthropology and Ethnology from the EHESS, Paris. She is Associate Professor in Human and Social Sciences at the Saint-Etienne School of Architecture, member of the Research Team Transformations and research fellow at LAA / LAVUE / CNRS. Her privileged field of investigation focuses on the social and spatial margins that she apprehends in their relationship to the center (working class and ethnic neighborhoods, social and collective houses, favelas, barrios, squats). She is also interested in the circulation of urban models, and since 2014 has been co-conducting with Olivier Boucheron research on the transformation of collective housing projects by their inhabitants in Europe, Asia and Africa.

Petra Pferdmenges

Through practice, research and teaching, Petra Pferdmenges (PhD) explores the role of the architect in co-producing the city. Her focus lies on Brussels, where she works on expanding architectural practice from 'built space' to 'lived space'. In 2010 she founded the spatial agency Alive Architecture based in Brussels after having practiced for five years in the internationally recognized architecture offices of Edouard François in Paris, France (2003-2004) and Josep Llinas in Barcelona, Spain (2006-2008). She is a researcher at KU Leuven - Campus Sint-Lucas Architecture since 2010, where she teaches design studios in the national and international Master of Architecture.

Marco Ranzato

Marco Ranzato (PhD) is researcher at the Faculty of Architecture La Cambre Horta of the Université Libre de Bruxelles, coordinator of the LoUiSE research group for the laboratory of territorial engineering Metrolab, and co-director of LATITUDE Platform for Urban Research and Design. His research focuses on expanded understanding of ecological design, processes of horizontal urbanization, as well as on co-production of water, energy and waste services and co-design. He recently edited the book Water vs. Urban Scape: Exploring integrated Water-Urban Arrangements for Jovis.

Stéphanie Marques dos Santos

Stephanie Marques dos Santos graduated in Law at the University of Louvain (UCL) and obtained a LLM from the European Academy of Legal Theory (FUSL & KUB). After living in Portugal and in Italy she worked as Head of Cabinet to the Deputy Mayor in charge of youth, equal opportunities and social cohesionat the Ixelles Municipality (Brussels). She is specializing in Urban Planning with a Master in Urbanism at the University of Louvain (UCL). Her interests include topics such as active citizenship, right to the city and the commons. She is a member of the Plateforme Citoyenne d'Aide aux Réfugiés and manages a local group of citizens for the housing of refugees from the Parc Maximilien.

PARTNER PARTICIPANTS

UNIVERSITY OF SHEFFIELD

Beatrice De Carli (project and team co-ordinator)

Beatrice De Carli is an architect specialising in urbanism and international development. She is currently a Lecturer in Urban Design at the University of Sheffield, School of Architecture, where she directs the MA in Urban Design. Beatrice completed her architectural studies at Politecnico di Milano, Italy, including a PhD in Architecture and Urbanism developed in collaboration with KU Leuven. Her research and teaching explore questions of equity, diversity, and inclusion in urban areas through visual methodologies and participatory action research. Beatrice is an Associate of Architecture Sans Frontières -UK and a Member of the Board of Directors of Architecture Sans Frontières -International.

E: b.a.decarli@sheffield.ac.uk / T: +44 7454023188

Célia Macedo

Celia is a researcher, architect and development practitioner specialised in urban issues, sustainability and international development, with focus on the Global South. Her experience includes research and practice in academia, industry and the NGO sector. Having graduated as an architect in 2006, Celia went on to secure an MSc degree (2009) in Energy Efficient and Sustainable Building at Oxford Brookes University. She completed a PhD in 2017 from the same university, which looked at people's appropriation of space in an informal settlement and within a mass-housing context of Luanda, Angola.

E: c.macedo@sheffield.ac.uk / T: +44 7775749623

Goran Vodicka

Goran is an architect, urban designer and researcher with over ten years of professional experience. He has worked in architecture offices and different types of international organisations (United Nations Development Programme, Shelter Centre, Architecture & Développement), as well as initiating projects with local groups and communities in Sheffield (PRGRS, SKINN). Since 2014, Goran has been teaching in the Sheffield School of Architecture primarily on the MA in Urban Design. He is also a doctoral researcher in the Department of Landscape, where he is a member of the Transnational Urban Outdoors research group, focused on addressing issues of ethnic and cultural diversity in urban places.

E: gvodicka1@sheffield.ac.uk / T: +44 7503921100

Maha Komber

Maha has recently qualified as a Part II Architectural Assistant, having completed her Masters in Architecture at the University of Sheffield this summer. During her time in Sheffield, she developed her interest in migrant social space. Through her dissertation she focused on studying its evolution through time, contrasting that with the current narrative on integration seen in the UK media and political discourse today. Additionally, for her thesis project she explored how the Asylum Seeker's 'Right to the City' can be celebrated, in the design of a 'Public Sanctuary' situated adjacent to the main arrival point in to the city of Sheffield. Here resident asylum seekers and visitors to Sheffield live together and open up their doors to the general public to celebrate different forms of cultural expression in public space.

POLITECNICO DI MILANO

Francesca Cognetti (team co-ordinator)

Francesca Cognetti is Associate Professor of Territorial and Urban Analysis at the Department of Architecture and Urban Studies and Rector's Delegate on Civic Engagement and Social Responsibility at Politecnico di Milano. Her teaching and research activities focus on public and social housing, and social inequalities. She is the coordinator of the action-research project Mapping San Siro, an experimental living lab aimed at sharing knowledge between academia and a large-scale public housing neighborhood in Milan.

E: francesca.cognetti@polimi.it / T: +39 3405510855

Ida Castelnuovo

Ida Castelnuovo holds a PhD in Regional Planning and Public Policy from IUAV, Venice. Her research interests concern participatory processes in urban projects and policies, local governance and decision-making processes in urban development, and the role of the university as an actor in urban policies. Ida is a postdoctoral research fellow at Politecnico – Polisocial program, and she is part of the action-research group Mapping San Siro.

E: ida.castelnuovo@polimi.it / T: +39 3357316414

ASF-INTERNATIONAL

Lucia Caistor-Arendar (team co-ordinator, ASF-UK)

Lucia is a freelance urbanist and is the convener of the Resilience by Design programme at ASF UK. Lucia is the lead Researcher of Designing Inclusion on behalf of ASF International.

E: l.caistor@asf-uk.org / T: +44 7910752926

HOUSING EUROPE

Alice Pittini (team co-ordinator)

Alice Pittini leads the daily work of the European Social Housing Observatory, coordinating researches, comparative studies, thematic briefings and articles. As the go-to person for facts and figures around housing in Europe, she delivers presentations in various events that try to make a reality check with what happens on the ground. Alice also works closely with the Chair and the Vice-Chair of the Observatory.

E: Alice.Pittini@housingeurope.eu / T: +32 25410564

Abderrahim Khairi

Abderrahim Khairi is managing and contributing to expand Housing Europe's network of members, while also planning and coordinating events for the Federation. In addition, he is in charge of developing Housing Europe's work around migration and integration policies.

E: Abderrahim.Khairi@housingeurope.eu / T: +32 485767812

Edit Lakatos

Edit is part of the policy team, focusing especially on European Funding. She is monitoring all sources of EU financial means that can support the public, cooperative and social housing sector and is responsible for all relevant publications and the respective online portal. Edit is also involved in a number of Housing Europe partnerships, including SDG Watch Europe.

E: Edit.Lakatos@housingeurope.eu / T.+32 (0)2 541 05 62

Mariel Whelan

Mariel recently joined Housing Europe as a research assistant trainee. She is a graduate of National University of Ireland, Galway, where she wrote her thesis on the Right to Housing in Ireland. Mariel is passionate about women's rights and housing rights, and over the course of the year will be working on a series of briefings focusing on contemporary housing issues.

KU LEUVEN

Viviana d'Auria (team co-ordinator)

Viviana d'Auria trained as an architect and urbanist at Roma Tre University and pursued studies in Human Settlements at the KU Leuven where she also completed her PhD. She has been Rubicon fellow at the Department of Geography, Planning and International Development Studies of the University of Amsterdam and is currently Assistant Professor in International Urbanism at the Department of Architecture, KU Leuven. Exploring 'practiced' architecture is an integral part of her research within a more general interest in the trans-cultural construction of cities and their contested spaces.

E: viviana.dauria@kuleuven.be / T: +32 484926681

Racha Daher

Racha Daher is trained as an architect at the College of Architecture Art and Design, A.U.S (UAE), and is specialized as an urban designer at GSAPP, Columbia University. She is co-founder of Hive Public Space, an urban design start-up that focuses on urban transformation through public space development. She has worked in professional practice in Brussels, New York City and Dubai, on projects of multiple scales, for both public and private sector clients. She has also worked as a researcher at the Urban Design Lab at Columbia University. Racha currently teaches urban design studio at KU Leuven, where she is undergoing PhD research on Ecological Urbanism in the Age of the Migrant, within the OSA research track 'Urbanisms of Pluralism'.

E: racha.daher@kuleuven.be / T: +32 491644860

Fadi Belouni

Fadi Belouni is an architect and urban designer who researches the influence of the built environment on divided societies and their 'living together'. Fadi received his B.Sc. in Architecture from Al-Baath University in Homs, Syria in 2011. Fadi holds a M.Sc. in Architecture (2015) and a postgraduate M.Sc. in Human Settlements (2016) from KU Leuven . Since then, Fadi is practicing architecture and urbanism at SUM Project+SUM research and s a PhD candidate at KU Leuven .

E: fadi.belouni@gmail.com / T: +32 465898988

Katharina Rohde

Katharina Rohde is an urban practitioner and a PhD candidate at the KU Leuven. Her work explores spatial, social and economic inequalities and visualizes inherent potentials and strategies of urban actors in the production of their habitat. In reflecting upon her practice, Katharina is also exploring the agency of migrants in city-making as part of her doctoral exploration wihthin the 'Urbanisms of Pluralism' track. Since 2005 Katharina has been involved in teaching at the University of the Witwatersrand Johannesburg, South Africa (Dep. of Architecture and Urban Planning & School of Arts), the Technical University of Berlin (Habitat Unit & Urban Planning Laboratory), and the HafenCity University, Hamburg and others.

E: katharina.rohde@kuleuven.be

KU LEUVEN STUDENTS

Wossen Gebreyohannes

Wossen Gebreyohannes is trained as an Architect and Urban designer at Ethiopian Institute of Architecture and Building Construction (EiABC). He was a junior Architect in the Main City Center (MCC) urban project by EiABC, which is about alternative strategies and design proposal in redeveloping the city of Addis Ababa. He has been working as an Assistant lecturer in the Addis Ababa Science and Technology University. He was also professionally practicing at Fasil Giorghis Consult, working on architectural and urban projects. Now he is pursuing his studies at KU Leuven for Masters in Human Settlements.

Amina Kaskar

Amina Kaskar trained as an architect at the University of Witwatersrand in Johannesburg and is currently completing a M.Sc. in Human Settlements at KU Leuven. She is the co-founder of Counterspace, a collaborative architectural studio dedicated to architectural projects, exhibition design, art installations, public events curation and urban design, which are often rigorously research-based. Her work is predominantly formed with ideas towards inclusivity, otherness, and future; using image and narrative as a means to deconstruct and reconstruct the city. In 2015, her firm participated in the inaugural Chicago Architecture Biennial, where they showcased their work 'Lost and Found'. She has also been involved in various curatorial projects with the Women's Living Heritage Monument, Freedom Park and The Cradle of Humankind; in addition to various cultural and political projects in rural and urbanized South Africa, and internationally.

Yu-Hsin Liu

Yu-Hsin Liu is trained as an architect at National Cheng Kung University, Taiwan. She was project designer at Stonehenge Architect International, specializing in housing projects in Taipei. She is also the member of Taiwan Independence Reformation Association, which is an NGO promoting Taiwan independence as well as human rights, environmental and cultural issues. She participates in several social movements and elections in Taiwan. After ga M.Sc. in Architecture at KU Leuven, she is currently studying the Master of Human Settlements (MaHS) also at KU Leuven

Lucas Lerchs

Lucas Lerchs graduated as an architect in 2016 at the Université Catholique de Louvain (UCL) in Brussels. During his studies, he spent an Erasmus year at the Faculdade de Arquitetura e Urbanismo of the Universidade de São Paulo (FAU-USP) where he became involved with grassroots movements and artistic collectives in the downtown area of the city. In 2017, he continued his studies with a M.Sc. in Human Settlements (MaHS) at KU Leuven. Part of his former thesis on São Paulo has been further elaborated as a comprehensive study and complemented with design scenarios,. This work has been exposed and presented at European conferences (EULER Erasmus + 2017) and published internationally (Domus 2016, Atlas of Design 2018). He is currently finalizing the Master of Science in Urbanism and Strategic Planning (MaUSP) at KU Leuven.

Shauni Marchand

Shauni Marchand graduated as an architect specialized in urban design at the LUCA School of Arts - Faculty of Architecture in Ghent in 2016. She is currently completing an M.Sc. in Human Settlements at KU Leuven. Her ambition is to continue to develop an interdisciplinary approach for design and research focusing on social inclusion and environmental justice. She has already tried to pursue this path by, among other things, participating in several international workshops and volunteering for a local office called Lab van Troje, working with projects related to these topics.

Clara Medina

Clara Medina graduated as an Architect and Urbanist at the Polytechnic University of Madrid (UPM) in 2014. She complemented her studies with an Erasmus stay at the Landscape Architecture M.Sc. at Delft University of Technology and by following the Human-Centred Innovation course on ethnographic research and service design by hi2 institute in Madrid. After some years in practice in Madrid, she is currently completing her M.Sc. in Human Settlements at KU Leuven. Her ambitions merge a keen environmental and social concern with advanced design strategies, a combination which Clara has pursued with distinction by taking part in international competitions on sustainable architecture and energy-efficient urban regeneration.

Maarten Van Hulle

Maarten Van Hulle graduated as a geographer at the Vrije Universiteit of Brussels and continued his studies with a M.Sc. in Urbanism and Spatial Planning at the University of Ghent. His aim is to pursue an interdisciplinary approach in order to combine his research-oriented background with a stronger understanding of planning and design. Maarten has participated in several international workshops and has worked for the spatial planning agency Voorland. He is currently completing a M;Sc. in Human Settlements at KU Leuven.

OTHER PARTICIPANTS

Claire Bosmans

Claire Bosmans is trained as an architect at the LOCI faculty of UCL, based in Brussels, and holds a Master in Urbanism and Strategic Planning from the KU Leuven. She has been working in professional practice in Brussels, on architecture and urban projects of multiple scales, for both public and private sector clients. From September on, Claire is going to join the OSA research lab at the KU Leuven as a PhD candidate working on Brussels' social housings, track 'Urbanisms of Pluralism'.

Hala El Moussawi

Hala is a PhD researcher at the Department of Geography, VUB with a background in Architecture and Urban Studies. Her research investigates patterns of settlement of refugees in the city following their housing strategies and trajectories. Following the case of newly arriving Syrian and Iraqi refugees in Brussels, she explores the role of arrival neighbourhoods, as well as support networks (mainly the ones during and after the Maximiliaan Refugee Camp in Brussels), in determining these patterns. Her research interests extend to the understanding of informal networks and practices and she also continues to closely follow and participate in questions of urban activism and urban change in Beirut.

Jingjing Li

Jingjing LI is currently a PhD candidate in social and cultural anthropology within the research team IMMRC at KU Leuven working on Engaged Urbanism through an exemplary case of Recyclart in the city of Brussels documenting and analyzing the transformation from dependence with permanent use of a place to temporary uses of urban spaces when confronted with urban eviction. She is also a researcher working on a project examining urban social housing employing interdisciplinary methods from anthropology and urbanism, a project collaborating with the OSA research team.

Jeanne Mosseray

Jeanne Mosseray trained as an anthropologist at UCLouvain, where she conducted research on immigration and European cities. She pursued studies in Urbanism and Strategic Planning at the KU Leuven. Now, as an "urbanist-anthropologist", she is combining socio-eco-ethnic research and urban design. Her main research focus is on social housing neighborhoods and the residents' inclusion in the city through urbanism. Jeanne is currently a PhD candidate at Cosmopolis., VUB and OSA, KU Leuven. Her research project is called "SoHoLab: the regeneration of large-scale social housing estate through LivingLab".

Olga Peek

Olga Peek studied Building Technology and Architecture at the University of Technology in Eindhoven (the Netherlands) and Human Settlements at the Department of Architecture, KU Leuven (Belgium). Since 2011 she has been actively engaged in research and local capacity building in Bolivia, Peru and Ecuador. She currently is a doctoral researcher at OSA, KU Leuven and has been involved in various action-learning activities in Guayaquil, Ecuador related to her doctoral inquiry, including the VLIR-UOS funded summer school Designing Inclusion: Co-producing Ecological Urbanisms for Inclusive Housing Transformations that integrated ecological design with equitable housing solutions for vulnerable communities in Guayaquil. Her research focuses on housing consolidation and urban transformations of Latin American self-built settlements in times of increasing environmental concerns.

Elisabetta Rosa

Elisabetta Rosa is an architect and urbanist holding a PhD from the Politecnico di Torino. Her research focuses on urban margins and the precariousness of housing, as well as their relationship with urban planning and transformations. She is currently a postdoctoral fellow at the Center for Research and Studies for Territorial Action (CREAT) at the UC Louvain in the framework of the project Brussels through its Margins: "Homelessness" between urban practices and urban transformation.

Min Tang

Min Tang is currently pursuing a PhD in Architecture at KU Leuven and Paris I Panthéon-Sorbonne. She is an urbanist whose interest lies in migration, public space and urbanism in the global South. Her research focuses on the dialectical relation between urban collectives and their territories, explored through young people's everyday creation of (new) socio-spatial affiliations. She has explored spontaneous settlements in Turkey, India, China and Kenya for the last 6 years. Min has led various participatory projects in Mathare, Nairobi and is a member of the Board of Directors of the NGO DBSA since 2015.
